General Medicine Out-patient Charges

When you attend for your out-patient appointment your consultant may require you to have some investigations or treatment.

This price list gives you an indication of the charges for tests and investigations which may be carried out during or after consultation.

If you have any questions about the treatment or investigation your consultant requests, or would like a price confirmed, please ask a member of the out-patient staff before proceeding with treatment.

Insured patients

We advise all insured patients to contact their medical insurance company prior to a consultant appointment to ensure the appropriate level and type of cover is available to them. We will also ask for your credit/debit card details when you arrive at the hospital so that you do not have to worry about paying for any excess or shortfall should one arise.

We will inform you of any shortfall on your account and your card will be charged seven days later.

Self-funding patients

We require payment of all hospital charges on the day of treatment and we ask that you bring a debit or credit card with you. We also collect fees on behalf of many of our consultants. These should be paid on the day of the consultation, however, some consultants may bill you directly for their fees.

It is possible that subsequent investigations may be required; if so we will send you a detailed invoice and seven days later your credit/debit card will be charged.

If your consultant is not using this combined billing system you will receive an invoice separately from the consultant for consultancy fees and any related consultant diagnostic charges.
